To Whom It May Concern:

I am a supporter of Christian Radio (K-Love) and it serves a vital role within my family. The amount of money they need to raise each year is already very difficult, especially in tough economic times. If they would be require to add more staff due to law changes it would be a huge burden financial. If laws change and they would need to establish community advisory boards that didn't necessarily have the same vision for the K-Love radio ministry, it could be detrimental to their operations. This would be the case for most companies or ministries; it wouldn't make good business sense. The translators they have fit specific needs and if they lose them many families like myself might be without the positive influence that Christian Radio (K-Love) provides. Thanks in advance for you considering my feedback.

Respectfully,

Dave Krewson
